THE DEACON'S TENTH.

BY MARY S. CHAPMAN.

Ye see the elder had preached a most powerful sermon on Christian givin', in which he took what I called purty strong ground. Among other things, he said we'd ought to do as much for our religion as the old Jews did for theirs, an' while it was all right to lay up for a rainy day, an' to get ahead if we honestly could, we should set apart at least one-tenth of our income as the Lord's money.

"Now, I think the elder went a leetle too far," says I to my wife, Huldy, as we was a drivin' home from meetin'. 'Givin' is well enough, but I get a'most tired a hearin' these ministers forever a dingin' about it."

"Waal, Lyman," says Huldy, "why don't you try givin' a tenth—try it for one year anyhow."

"My!" says I, "as if I didn't give more'n that now; it's two shillin's an' fifty cents, every time I turn around, to say nothin' o' the contributions to big objects. If I get home with a dollar in my pocket I think I'm a lucky fellow."

"Then I'm sure," says Huldy, with that queer little smile o' hern that she sometimes has, "it'll be a real savin' to ye to go into systematically a givin' yer tenth."

"Now, I hadn't any idee of doin' it, an' keepin' a reckonin' of what I contribute—in fact, I thought that verse about lettin' yer right hand know what yer left hand was a doin' was rather again it, but somehow Huldy has a cool way o' takin' things fer granted, an' though the mildest of all women, she generally manages to carry her p'int.

Next mornin' I see her a makin' a book out o' some sheets o' paper, an' rulin' 'em off, an' stitchin' on to 'em a pasteboard kiver, an' on the outside she writ in big letters that was as plain as printin,' 'The Lord's Money.' This she handed to me an' said nothin'.

That week I got pay fer my wheat; it was an uncommon good crop; it come to six hundred dollars. I was settin' by the fire a countin' it up with some satisfaction, when Huldy jest struck under my nose that book, 'The Lord's Money.'

"What's that for, Huldy," says I.

"Why, for the tenth," said she.

"Bless my soul!" says I, a wrigglin' an' twistin', "that would be sixty dollars; I can't stand that."

She didn't say anything, but set a watchin' me, an' I knew it warn't no use a doin' her, so I took six ten-dollar bills, crisp an' new, an' laid 'em in a pile.

"Yis, yis," says I, a tryin' to screw my face into a smile, an' to act as if I'd been a calkerlatin' all the way through to give 'em.

You see there was an awful sight of old Adam in me. I jest set there begredin' that money. I most wished the wheat hadn't come to so much. Then I happened to remember what the elder said in his sermon—that it would be a mighty hard wrench on us at first to give a tenth—that when the fingers had got crooked up a graspin' this world's goods 'twas hard to get 'em straightened out but that when we'd become used to this way o' givin', we'd enjoy it an' be blessed in it as much as in prayin' an' readin' the Scripters. A thinkin' on that sermon, I made up my mind I'd double my subscription for the elder's support, an' that would just take the sixty dollars.

As I harvested my crops an' sold 'em, I was astonished to see how the Lord's pile grew, an' I had to think it over middlin' sharp to know where to invest it so 'twould do most good, an' I was getting over my wrench a little until my interest money come due. The year before, old Uncle Nat had died an' most unexpectedly had left me five thousand dollars. If the legacy had dropped down from the skies I couldn't have been more surprised. Now I had three hundred a comin' in from it, and it most killed me to take thirty on't an' put it aside for the Lord. I couldn't help whinin'.

"Now, Huldy," says I, "don't ye believe the old Jews deducted their taxes afore they laid by their tenth?"

"I dunno," says she; "we might read up Leviticus an' Numbers an' Deuteronomy an' see."

"Bless my soul, Huldy, I'd ruther pay the whole thirty dollars than wade through all them dull books. An' then, says I, a thinkin' hard, 'accordin' to what these agents that come around beggin' say, I s'pose it would be a good pecooniary speckerlation to give to the Lord. They tell about throwin' out crackers an' comin' back loaves, an' show how them is blessed in their basket an' in their store that bestow their goods on the poor. Anyhow, I've made up my mind to try it."

"Now, Lyman Tubbs, don't ye go into this tenth business with no such worldly motives. If ye do ye'll be worse than Ananias and Sapphira, who was struck dead at once. But the Lord has said, 'I will never leave thee nor forsake thee,' and 'prove me now herewith,' but if ye undertake to drive a sharp bargain with Him, ye'll find out that He'll git ahead of ye every time. No, He's given us all we have, an' I'm thinkin' He'll ask us some mighty close questions about the way we've used it."

Huldy didn't very often preach, but when she did her sermons were what I call p'inted.

Time passed on, an' I got used to givin' my tenth. I didn't squirm over it as I did; I got kinder raised an' to feelin' liberal. I didn't sell so much as a turkey without puttin' aside tithes of it.

It happened in the summer that my wife's cousin Silas an' his family came to see us, an' I was a braggin' about givin' my tenth, an' I supposed he'd never heerd o' sech a thing; but Silas says he, 'I've done it ever since I was converted. I airn two dollars a day, an' every Saturday night I jest lay aside one dollar and twenty cents, an' I pray over it; its sacred; its the Lord's money.'

'Don't ye take yer livin' out o' it first?'

'Yer what?' says Silas, amazed. 'It's just so much I airn, an' the ability to earn it comes from the Lord, an' I joyfully give back to Him the little part.'

'But, ain't that kinder resky? Ye might be sick, or yer work give out; I should be a little fearsome.'

'These are the promises,' says Silas; 'My God shall supply all your needs,' an' 'Lo, I am with you.' They are all yea an' amen.'

Waal, if I didn't feel small after that. I had simply given a tenth of all I'd sold an' grumbled over it at that, an' there were all those broad acres that had fed us, an those big trees in the woods that had kept us warm—blessin's and blessin's that I hadn't counted, an' here was Silas with nothin' but his hands, and yet so willin' hearted and doin' so much. When I carried him an' his folks back to the city I jest filled my wagon box full o' things, an' felt as if I was givin' directly to the Lord.

One day the elder and his family was over to our house, and he was a talkin'. His son Fred was a playin' with my Thomas—they was awful good friends—an' says the elder, 'If I had as much money as you have, Deacon Tubbs, I'd send Thomas to school, and make a minister o' him.'

'Bless my soul!' thought I, 'that's the last thing I want him to be.' Ye see I had other plans for my boy, but I said nothin'.

My next neighbor, old Mr. Hodges, had a son who went to the city an' studied law, an' got to be judge, an' comes home in his big carriage once in a while to visit the old folks, his wife and children dressed to fits, an' seein' them I had a natural hankerin' for Thomas to turn out like that. I was a sayin' this to Huldy when the elder's folks was gone.

'Now, Lyman Tubbs,' says she a lookin' with them great earnest eyes o' hers, 'would you really like to have our Thomas jest like old Mr. Hodges' son—a breaking the Sabbath, he and his boys, a shootin' ducks an' a drinkin' an' a playin' cards? Be you a deacon and a member of the church and not feel as if it was bigger business to persuade men to forsake their sins and to love the Lord Jesus Christ?'

Ever since Silas was here my mind has been dreadfully took up with something he was a tellin' me. He said some good Christian men had hired rooms in the worse part of the city an' made them bright and attractive, an' was a singin' hymns an' a preachin' to the folks, all without money an' without price, an' some sech word as that is what I'd been a willin' my boy could do an' jest then Thomas came in and stood beside his mother. He had the same hair as hers, an' the same brown eyes, an' somethin' told me that if he took to preachin' he'd be one of the convincin' sort, for I must say that nobody's words ever took hold of an old sinner like me as Huldy's does.

Well, my tenth money grew; half the time I didn't know what to do with it. I was over to the elder's one day and he was a tellin' me of a school which he thought would be a good place to send our Thomas—he'd noticed how crazy the boy was for books and learnin', and the minister said he'd a cousin a livin' jest out o' the village that would take good care o' Thomas, an' board him, an' he'd be under good Christian influence.

'What do you say, Huldy?' says I, as soon as I'd got home.

'I'd like him to go, and for the elder's boy to go with him.'

Sure enough he should, and that would be a use for the rest of my tenth, an Thomas an Fred was awful good friends; they was like David and Jonathan, and what do you think! there was a revival that, jest like a big wave, struck that school, an', in fact, the whole community, an both the boys was converted, and you can't think how I felt, so glad about it, an kinder streaked, too, for I know it warn't none of my doin; I'd been sech a poor, good-for-nothing Christian half my life, it was enough to set my Thomas agin the Lord.

We got the good news on Saturday mornin' and in the afternoon was the covenant meetin'. It was jest about a year from the time that Huldy handed me the 'Lord's Money book.' I remember how I got up in the meetin' then and talked, not because I had anything to say, but bein' deacon, I felt as if I ought to, and told the brethren I hadn't made any progress, and all that—jest what I commonly said. How could I talk that way now when I had had a year of sech oncommon blessin', and with Huldy beside a cryin' for joy because our Thomas had been converted? No, I couldn't keep from breakin' down, and thankin' the Lord for His goodness to me and mine, and I knew that givin my tenth, though it had come so begredgingly, had been a help to me. I warn't sech a small, waspish critter as I was afore.

The next year I was man enough to divide my tenth with Huldy, and sech good times as we had investing it. Now Huldy was great on what we call the 'Inasmuch Charities'—'Inasmuch as ye have do.e it unto one of the least of these,' etc. She was always a findin some bed-ridden old woman to help, or crippled child, or some other case of need, while I couldn't hardly sleep of nights a thinkin of the great west, with the foreigners a comin into it, and of the poor freedmen of the south, or of the great heathen world that so needs the gospel. We would spend hours and hours talkin it over, an as we did so we would get nearer to each other, and I trust, nearer to the Lord.

It's now been a good many years that we've been a tryin this tenth business, and I wouldn't go back to the old helter-skelter way of givin for anything.

Huldy has jest been to the city to see the children, and she came home with her face all aglow. Our Thomas and the minister's Fred, who married our Mary, have gone into business together, and are doing first rate; but that isn't the best of it; they have started a mission in the wickedest part of the city, and Huldy said it did her old soul good to hear those young voices a tellin them poor, ignorant ones of the love of Jesus, and to see them a listenin an a comin into the kingdom.

As I am closin I got this much to tell you: if you want to be a happy Christian you must let your prayin and praisin and givin go together, an I will say that Huldy never did a better thing for me than when she gave me "The Lord's Money Book.'

Youthful Great Men.

It is undeniable that many of the greatest careers have been made by young men, says the Baltimore Sun. Washington was but 43 when he was called to the command of the American revolutionary army. Henry Clay was speaker of the house of representatives at 34. Stephen A. Douglas was but 39 when he first became a candidate for the presidency. John Jay was chief justice of the United States at 45. James G. Blaine was only 32 when he become speaker of the house of representatives. Alexander Hamilton took charge of the treasury at 32 years of age. Martin Van Buren at 36 organized the famous Albany regency and was governor of New York at 40. John C. Calhoun in his 42d year was vice-president of the United States. John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky, was vice-president at 32 and a candidate for the presidency at 35. George B. McClelian was only 38 when nominated for the presidency.

In military life especially young men have been conspicuous. Gen. Grant was but 40 years old when he began winning a name for himself in our civil war, and was only 43 when the war closed. The great Napoleon was master of France and Europe before his 30th birthday. Alexander the great had conquered the word and left it before he was 33 years old. Fremont, the "Pathfinder," had explored the Rocky mountains before he was 30, and was running for the presidency at 43.

Columbus was in the 30's when he explained his ideas of the western passage and enlisted the Spanish sovereigns in the project that led to the discovery of America. Richard Cobden was but 34 when he founded the Anti-Corn Law league, which revolutionized the commercial policy of Great Britain. William Pitt, ranked by some historians as the greatest of modern British premiers, was practically ruler of England at 24. The list of youthful great men might easily be extended.

Captain Wiborg and two other officers of the steamship Horsa, were found guilty by a jury in the United States Court at Philadelphia, of violating the neutrality laws by taking an armed expedition to Cuba.

OUR "DENSE IGNORANCE."

Two weeks ago we stated in a rather jocular way that we had heard a rumor on the streets that Comrade Alex. Stewart of Scotland had been spoken of as a candidate for chairman of the Republican county committee for the coming term or year. We also stated, judging from Mr. Stewart's reputation as we learned of it, more than from our own knowledge of the man—for our acquaintance is limited, but very pleasant on our part, so far as it goes—what kind of a chairman we thought he would make, and why we thought so.

In the next issue of the Repository succeeding our publication of the paragraphs referred to, that paper attributes to us qualities of cynicism or a talent for sarcasm to which we never made any claim, or imputes to us a "dense ignorance" of Republican politics, which in its view is lamentable if not shameful. We have never made any claims as to political acumen or astuteness in any direction, nor do we harbor any unkind feelings against the Repository for its cuttingly unkind references to us in this respect, but we still cling to the hope that we may not be so densely ignorant as the Repository would write us down, though we will not deny that we are the "Democratic editor of the Franklin Review." We will say, however, that we are not now a Democratic politician and for this fact we are strongly criticised and have brought down upon us the mild displeasure of a number of our Democratic friends for whom we have always had and still have the kindliest regard and for whom we would always vote if they were candidates for office and we had the privilege of supporting them.

But, many a true thing is said in a joke, we often hear, and it looks now as though Comrade Stewart WILL be a candidate for County Chairman at the meeting of the next committee; and we do not believe he is fool enough to be a candidate unless he sees a prospect of success; nor is he the man to base his possibilities upon castles in the air. We don't believe he is an air-castle builder nor a rainbow chaser, but one who regards events and their consummation as the results of causes or actions. He has said nothing to us nor to any one for our hearing, so far as we know, that he will be a candidate, but it looks mighty much that way now, and we believe the Repository realizes this as a fact and would be glad to recall some of its Italics in reference to Mr. Stewart, when it was sneering at our "dense ignorance."

As to the desire of Comrade Seiders for re-election to the chairmanship we hadn't given it a thought when we wrote our joke about Comrade Stewart. We know that he has held the position a number of times, and without solicitation, and that he has always been active and mainly successful, except in the year 1882 or somewhere along there, when, if he did not succeed he made some folks mighty uneasy for a while. We have not the slightest objection to his re-election but we will not be a delegate, therefore cannot vote for or against him.

We haven't any wish to father the thought as to Comrade Stewart's prospects, but looking at things as we see them (which is from the outside altogether) it seems to us possible that Comrade Stewart may succeed, and if he does, as we said before, his friends and his foes will always know where to find him.

IT IS RATHER BITTER.

Many times have we heard within the past few weeks that there has never been so much factional ugliness shown in any political party in Franklin county as that which now stirs the Republicans—especially the politicians. The amount of mud-slinging and openly expressed animosity of the bitterest kind has never been equalled, the older members of both parties tell us. Indeed, we cannot recollect a single campaign in thirty years—and we have been reading something of Franklin county politics for the last three decades and more—in which so much political bitterness has been manifested by opposing parties to one another, even.

This kind of political agitation is neither right nor respectable, nor does it profit those who use this style of campaigning. Vinegar doesn't catch flies, and those who throw filth have rarely clean hands or clean garments themselves.

As a relief to this state of things there are happily some exceptions in which candidates or their friends present their claims in a gentlemanly way without vituperation or any sort of unmanliness. One of these exceptions is the communication which appears in today's REVIEW presenting the claims of Mr. Ledy for renomination for the office of Register and Recorder. The article is so temperate and free from all ugliness that it must commend itself to the approval of all who read it. There is not a criticism of a single competitor for the nomination for that office nor toward a candidate for any other office to be named on the ticket. We do not have any special affection for Mr. Ledy above the regard that men should have for each other and we are under no pledge to vote for or otherwise support him, but the friend who writes in his behalf sets an example which the friends and foes of some other candidates would do well not only to consider but to imitate.

THAT SPANISH INSULT.

Is the belligerant attitude of the United States towards Spain consistent with the dignity of a government which is one of the most enlightened and probably the most advanced in the arts of peace? While sympathy with the Cubans as against the Spaniards is right and commendable, as it is always right to sympathize with the down-trodden and the oppressed, it is a question whether there is not considerable jingoism and a tendency toward the subversion of authorized government, in the unreasoning and mob-like war cry against Spain because of the insane demonstrations of the Spaniards at Barcelona and Madrid a few days ago. For many reasons not necessary to enumerate Spain has surely been descending in the scale or category of nations within the last few centuries, from among the highest to one of the lowest positions in wealth, in power and civilization among the nations of Europe. Her position as a government is pitiful, and so it is with her people. The recent excited demonstrations of her people are the strongest evidence of her impotence. And the lurid headlines of the great dailies of this country, in which the word "War" is focused in largest and blackest letters do not represent the calm, dignified strong judgment of our people. Nobody cares to see a battle between a mastiff and cur, no matter how noble the former or how spiteful the latter. The United States cannot quarrel with Spain. Any one of many single states in the Union could furnish armies and munitions of war to conquer Spain over and over again. Therefore this boastful attitude of our congress toward a nation going into senility and a government sinking into lamentable decay is not the attitude of a stalwart warrior toward a weak enemy, nor of a great nation toward another nation whose greatness has, we may say, departed.

First the Senate then the House passed resolutions recognizing the belligerency of Cuba, and these resolutions were adopted almost unanimously. The Senate resolutions are introduced with the blunt statement that "a condition of public war exists between the Government of Spain and the Government proclaimed and for some time maintained by force of arms by the people of Cuba." The same introduction to a resolution might have been adopted by every government in Europe in favor of the confederacy when the Union was in its latest (and, let us hope, its last) great battle for existence. Then the resolution proceeds to say that the United States "should maintain a strict neutrality between the contending powers, according to each all the rights of belligerents in the ports and territory of the United States." What a mess we would have had of it had the powers of Europe accorded the same rights to each of the sections in the United States struggling for supremacy.

In the next resolution the friendly offices of the United States are offered to Spain to secure the independence of Cuba. How would we have received the friendly offices of any power that sought to secure the independence or the secession of the confederate states from the Union? Of course we do not consider the cases similar, and they are not in all things but in some respects they are, but there is a principle of international comity that applies to both.

Then Spain as a government has disavowed and disapproved of the riotous acts of the people of Barcelona and Madrid, who are perhaps only a little nearer madness than some of our newspapers have shown themselves to be; so that government as a government should not be charged with the offences of some of its hot-headed and unreasoning people. Spain has apologized for the wrongs her people have committed against our consulate at Barcelona; it is probable that the rioters will be punished, and if this is done what more can we ask?

Cuba is her most productive outlying colony and it is natural that she should use all endeavors to still secure as much of the profits from this fertile island as she can.

Cuba will be free; the very course Spain is pursuing to crush the rebellion there will defeat her purpose. Her newly inaugurated mode of warfare that has been proclaimed by the new officer at the head of the army there will do more than anything else to make Cuba free, and the people of the island with the moral support of the civilized world to encourage them, will strengthen their arms, multiply their numbers and give victory to those who are making such sacrifices for civil liberty.

Political.

Communicated.

Mr. J. H. Ledy, who will be a candidate for renomination for Register and Recorder, has, during his term of office, made a most enviable record. He has discharged the duties of his position in a manner highly creditable to himself and entirely satisfactory to the public. On assuming control of the office he was quick to discover that many reforms were needed, if the public was to be served with that promptitude which the age demands. The methods pursued by those who had preceded him, however well they might have been adapted to the wants of the people in the earlier days of the county, were unsuited to the present day, the business of the office having grown in volume since the organization of the county more than a hundred years ago. For years the same routine had been followed, every new official following closely in the footsteps of his predecessor, and no effort apparently was made to ascertain if a more expeditious method could not be found,—a shorter way by which valuable time could be saved. Mr. Ledy gave the subject no little thought, and it was not long until a complete transformation had been wrought and the workings of the office entirely revolutionized. The immense number of papers, which increase as the years go by, were carefully assorted, grouped and distinctly labelled, and are thereby made easy of access. Any particular instrument that may be called for can be obtained almost instantly, thus saving hours of valuable time to those who have business to transact before him. He has not only devised methods by which business can be transacted more promptly but he has performed a task which none of his predecessors seemed to have the courage to undertake. For years many valuable papers had been pigeon-holed in the office. So numerous were these instruments that new cases had to be made in which to place them. These papers did not belong to the office, were not intended to be kept there, they were the property of those by whom they had been left. These papers Mr. Ledy carefully separated, noted the names of the owners and whenever the post office address could be learned sent a communication calling attention of the owner to the character of the instrument remaining in the office for him. Though many hundreds were in this way restored to the rightful owner, thousands yet remained. By a judicious scheme of advertising he reached thousands of others, so that of the immense pile of documents which he found stored away, he has succeeded in placing all in the hands of those to whom they belonged, except a few hundreds. The expense incurred, was borne by Mr. Ledy himself, and days of labor bestowed in getting the papers in proper shape. In everything he has sought how he could best serve the public and that he has succeeded is fully attested by the many new friends which he has added to those he had when inducted into office.

These all join in asking for his retention in the position he has filled so creditably. With the experience acquired while in control of the office, he will be the better fitted to serve the public more efficiently, and that he will be renominated, and that by a handsome majority, on Tuesday next, is now conceded by many of the best Republicans of the county.

Chambersburg Awakened.

Our town has awakened to the fact that it is about time to make the acquaintance of itself and really learn what kind of a town it is. We have been moving along so quietly, so much at ease with the condition of affairs that we were in danger of going off into a profound slumber leaving matters and things to take care of themselves. Were it not for the little bluster in one of our political parties which has been somewhat overdone, although served a la Corbett and Fitzsimmons, we would hardly know whether 1896 would erect a palisade around us or not, and a good many of us did not seem to care.

But the awakening has come and the indications are that the palisade will not be built—not this summer, and may be never, but, as our latin grammar used to say "quod est demonstrandum." If indications are worth anything in determining facts, then the meeting of our new Board of Trade on Tuesday evening indicates very plainly that the members of the board are determined to put new and pert energy into our town, and if they can secure the co-operation of our enterprising citizens or business men they will make the old town buzz with other sounds than those of small political blusters.

The meeting on Tuesday evening was the best of the kind ever held in Chambersbug, or, rather the best held for many years. While not the largest ever held all the chairs in the room were filled, and the large parlor of the Y. M. C. A. was filled to overflowing with enthusiasm, all of which go to show that our town has really awakened from its long sleep and as soon as it has partaken of some refreshment, in the way of organization, it will "hump itself" and go in to do something. But our readers should not stand aside and admire the pluck and witness the struggle necessary to bring about such a changed condition of affairs. They should "go in" with the Board of Trade, and if they can do nothing else they can give their moral support, and if they cannot or will not do that, please do not stand off and with a credulous smile exclaim: "What is a Board of Trade good for anyhow?"

The M. E. Church Conference—Will There Be a Change of Church Polity?

The present year of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the M. E. church is drawing to a close. The next annual conference will convene in Williamsport, Pa., Wednesday, March 18. As the quadrennial meeting of the general conference of the church will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, in May next, the coming annual meeting of the conference will be of more than ordinary importance.

The idea seems to be general that there will be many changes in pastors at the coming conference, but none is anticipated or desired by the congregation in Chambersburg. The church has never had a pastor who is more highly regarded by the congregation, than Rev. B. H. Mosser, who is one of the most lovable of men besides being an able, earnest preacher.

It is probable that a number of matters of unusual interest will be brought up and settled, for a time at least, at the next general conference. One of these will be the admission of females as lay delegates, and the other the change or removal of the time limit. The sentiment in favor of admitting women to official positions in the church and especially for giving them a place and a vote in the general conference is growing, and will probably soon prevail.

CONCORD.

Dr. William Shultz of Millville, has located in Concord with his office in rooms formerly occupied by Dr. Coons. The doctor is a graduate of Jefferson Medical college which is a good recommendation. We wish him success.

Isaac Worthington and sons of Ambersons Valley have the contract for furnishing 30,000 hoop poles for the Steelton flour mill. The polls are being cut in Horse Valley. Ahead of Fulton again.

The class of '96 at C. V. S. N. S. elected Wm. C. Donnelly of this place, class orator for class day exercises. They could not have made a better selection out of their rank of one hundred and twenty.

Martha Hockenberry disposed of her household goods at public sale Saturday, and with her daughter, Mollie, will move to Clearfield, where they will make their future home.

The members of the United Presbyterian church expect to remodel their church this spring. The building will be repapered, painted and furnished with stained glass windows.

UPTON.

G. W. Frye and wife accompanied by their nieces, Misses Alice Martin and Daisy Frye, attended the wooden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Krebs at Leitersburg last week.

John Raymer, Jere. Myers, Jacob Hughes, Harry Mosser and George Cleverstone left for Illinois Tuesday of last week. They intend making their future home beyond the Alleghenies.

Bruce Barnhart, our enterprising young storekeeper and postmaster, is shaking hands with all his friends this week—it is a girl. Congratulations.

The Reformed congregation of this place, by a unanimous vote, has elected Rev. Santee, of Smithsburg, as pastor.

We are glad to notice that Miss May Weagley is again able to be about after a long illness.

QUINCY.

The members of the Methodist chapel near Blue Rock are still continuing their revival at that church; three persons are at the altar seeking religion. They are Mrs. Maggie Thompson, Amos Ressler and his wife, Ola Ressler. The meeting is in charge of the pastor, Rev. Joseph C. Clemmens.

Josiah Burger, at the Nunnery, has been on the sick list for some time and at this writing has not improved any.—Mrs. Dolly, widow of Frederick Mentzer is lying very ill at Altodale. She is now nearly 90 years of age and was among the oldest persons in Quincy township. She is not expected to live any length of time.—Samuel Small and his wife, Barbara Small, near Altodale, are both confined to bed by sickness. They are both pretty well advanced in years. Mr. Small had a hard spell of sickness last winter.—Mrs. Elizabeth Small, Millbrook, whose illness we made mention of several weeks ago, is not improving at this time but still seems to be growing weaker. We would be very glad to hear that all may speedily recover.

D. M. Benedict, Pigeon Hill, had sale Thursday. One of the largest crowds of people that was seen for many years past at a sale in that section gathered there. Work horses sold for $102, $101.50 and $90. A pair of mules brought $171.50. The sale amounted to nearly $2000. Much credit is due Auctioneer Bender for these large prices.

Dr. W. H. Brosius, Altodale, says that a stranger made his appearance in his family Monday night, Feb. 24. He was hungry and he fed him, he was naked and he clothed him. Of course the visitor was a bouncing boy.

Miss Ottie, daughter of E. M. Small and Lillie Small, Altodale, died Friday at 6 p. m., after an illness of several months of catarrhal affection. Her death was unexpected. No one thought that the end was near as she only took her bed a week previous to her death. She thought that she would be able to regain her health. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She was cut down in the very prime of life and yet God, who knoweth all things, for some wise purpose, which we cannot understand, has taken her spirit to that land whence no messenger has ever returned. She was an earnest worker in the Methodist Sabbath school at Altodale and last winter, during the revival there, she presented herself at the altar and, seeking, found peace. By her songs and conversations during her christian life she paved the way to that bright and happy land where sorrow and trouble are no more. She would have been 15 years old in July next. Thus early has ended her life and her work was soon finished, but if the chief end of man or woman is to serve God her life was blessed. Her death is a great loss to her family and a large circle of young people who loved Ottie for her noble and pious life. A large cortege attended her funeral Monday morning. Her remains were buried at Fetterhoff's chapel.

Father, mother and brothers and sisters dear,
O'er my grave shed not a tear;
I have gone to prepare the way,
You all must follow some later day.

A light is from our family gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

Though early plucked from nature's bed,
Ottie is gone to bloom on high:
In that celestial paradise,
Where flowers never die.

She's now gone to live forever,
For her hopes in God were strong:
But we miss her—oh, we miss her.
Ottie's journey is so long.

Announcement.

Announcement is made in the daily papers of Chambersburg that a meeting will be held at the Union Hotel Tuesday evening next to organize a camp of the Union Veteran Legion. Here follows the statement as to who are eligible. They are those who volunteered in the Union cause prior to July 1, 1863, for three years in the army, navy or marine corps, and were discharged after at least two years' continuous service or at any previous time by reason of wounds received when on duty. Also those who enlisted prior to July 22, 1861, for two years and served their enlistment unless sooner discharged because of wounds received while on duty.

[We believe these organizations are all right, but question very much the expediency of forming one in Chambersburg until after the meeting of the G. A. R. encampment, as it might seem like making a distinction among the members of this great organization, and now is not the time to make distinctions or create dissentions.—ED.]

An Aged Citizen Called Hence.

Communicated,

John Harglerode an aged and respected citizen of Greenvillage, died at his home in that place on Wednesday, February 27th. He was born in Guilford township on the old Harglerode homestead on December 31st, 1814, and he was therefore 81 years, 1 month and 26 days old at the time of his death. In 1840 he was united in marriage with Mary Jane Bitner in Shippensburg, by Rev. Wilson, then pastor of the Presbyterian church. His beloved wife though far advanced in years and frail of body, still survives him, though it is evident that the end of her pilgrimage is not far off. More than a year ago she was stricken with paralysis and she has been a helpless invalid ever since, and the death of her husband has had a telling effect on her and her departure to join him to whom she plighted her vows as blushing maiden at the marriage altar more than fifty-six years ago is only a question of a few days. In all these years she was all that a devoted wife could have been to him. She was industrious and thrifty and managed her household affairs with economy and at the same time raised a large family of children. After their marriage in the spring of 1840 they moved to the farm at Culbertson where they continued to reside until about ten years ago when the infirmities of advancing years compelled them to relinquish the active pursuits of that laborious occupation. They then removed to Greenvillage where they have since resided, enjoying the fruits and prosperity of a well spent life. These children survive to mourn the death of one of the kindest and most indulgent of fathers. Wm. H. at home, Jesse, of Culbertson, Michael, on the homestead farm, Simon, of Stoughstown, Christian, Monmouth, Ills., Abram, of Pellouse, Washington, Mrs. Annie Allison of Stoughstown, Mrs. Kate Martin of Roxbury, and Mrs. Lydia Ashburn of near Shippensburg.

His remains were interred in the M. E. graveyard in Greenvillage on Monday at 10 o'clock. A large concourse of friends and neighbors joined in the funeral obsequies and the funeral cortege was an unusually large one, showing that the deceased was held in high esteem by the entire community. In childhood we learned to love and respect him for his kindness of heart which never changed and now with scores of others whom he has, many a time befriended, we bow our head in sadness and exclaim: Hail and Farewell, old Friend. X.

She Committed Suicide.

Mrs. Susan Gilbert, wife of John C. Gilbert who lives in the eastern portion of town near Eberly's lane, committed suicide on Sunday morning by hanging herself by a clothes line in the garret.

Mr. Gilbert left home in the morning to attend services in King street U. B church, his wife saying she did not feel well, declined to go with him. When Mr. Gilbert returned near 12 o'clock, he was surprised not to find his wife in the portions of the house usually occupied. He went up stairs and found her dead body hanging in the garret stairway. The line from which she was suspended was fastened to a rafter, and she had deliberately walked down the stairs until her weight was suspended upon the rope.

Coroner Suesserott was called and summoned the following jury: J. C. Schellhase, S. Metz, A. J. Small, T. W. Cashman, J. W. Arris and Jacob Rudisil. The verdict was in accordance with the facts and that no blame rested upon any one.

Mrs. Gilbert had been of despondent mind for some time, caused, it is thought, by an attack of the grip from which she suffered several years ago. It is about two years since she attempted to take her life with a butcher's cleaver, and gave herself some ugly gashes about the head. Her age was about 56 years. She was a member of the First Lutheran church and was in many respects an excellent woman. She was Mr. Gilbert's second wife. The funeral was yesterday; interment in Cedar Grove cemetery.

An Active Church—Large Missionary and Other Collections.

Large congregations still attend the services which have been in progress in the First U. B. church for some time, but on Sunday last the attendance was unusually large at all the services. In the morning memorial services were held for William Anderson who was widely know in the county; for Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Painter, the young couple whose death was so specially sad, and for Mrs. Cyrus McCurdy. The death of these members of his church afforded Rev. Washinger an excellent subject, and he made a most impressive address to the large audience that was present to hear him.

The annual missionary service of the Sunday school was held at six o'clock in the evening. At this meeting the large auditorium was crowded. There were exercises by the primary department of the school, which with the other exercises of the evening were interspersed with music by an orchestra led by Prof Mentzer. Rev. S. A. Martin made a timely address after which the financial report from the different classes was heard. The sum of the missionary contributions by classes including the primary department amounted to $316.82. For the other expenses of the school, $249.34. The amount for missions from the congregation was $91.25. Ladies' Aid Society, $36.48; Women's Missionary Society, $68.08; Y. P. C. U., $45.00. The total contributions amounted to $806.97. These figures show Rev. Mr. Washinger's church to be one of the most active working congregations in town and it is led by one of the most active and faithful ministers in the Cumberland Valley.

Will the Taylor Works Be Started?

Two gentlemen have within a few days made a proposition to the directors or bondholders of the Taylor Engine company to take charge of the shops and run them. The directory are agreed to give the use of the shops and machinery rent free, it is said, if taxes are paid and a few other small obligations assumed by the parties proposing to start the works. It is now asked that the citizens contribute or advance a small amount of money to pay wages and other necessary light running expenses. It remains to be seen whether this will be done.

The parties proposing to start the works are M. D. Lehmaster and Frank S. Duncan, the former of whom was recently superintendent and the latter book-keeper at the works. These gentlemen have some capital but not so much as is needed to start the works successfully. It is said that paying orders can be had at any time to put a good force of men at work on a profitable basis for those wishing to start the enterprise. It is to be hoped that by some means new life can be infused into the now dead plant which should be a monument to Chambersburg industry and a profitable investment for some of its now idle capital.

ARGUMENT COURT.

The Business of Wednesday of Last Week.

Not having room last week for the court proceedings which were had on Wednesday, in our last issue, we give them below:

On the argument in the exceptions to the report of the auditor in the estate of Mary Barr, dec'd., the principal matter in dispute was the bill of Dr. I. N. Snively of Waynesboro, for professional services. The auditor reported the services necessary, skilful and arduous, but held that the bill came within the statute of frauds and it was therefore disallowed. The question also arose whether a physician can recover for services rendered by his medical student. The decision of the court was reserved.

The next case was upon the estate of Mary E. Keefer, late of Chambersburg. The question argued was whether the children of decedent can be allowed the exemption of $300 when the father is still living. Decision reserved.

The next argument was on the case of H. C. Wilson vs. D. W. Hays, action in ejectment. Upon execution issued against D. W. Hays, John F. Williams bought the property at sheriff's sale. Wilson gave notice at the sale that he owned the property. The case had been under consideration by the court before when it was shown that Williams' name had been placed on the record. A motion was made to show cause why Williams' name should not be stricken from the record.

Citizens of Chambersburg petitioned for a rule on borough officers to show cause why water pipes should not be extended on West Market street. Rule was discharged.

The following certiorari cases were argued. W. A. Trogler vs. Atkinson Devilbiss was from the docket of Justice Wilson of Mercersburg. The amount involved was $3.50 for which Devilbiss sued Trogler for painting. A number of court officers and others are awaiting their fees. The decision has not yet been rendered. The second case was that of Harvey vs. Knauff. The amount of the claim in this case is $4.50. The third case was that of Bricker vs. Brewer. The amount in this instance is $30. Justice Slick did not produce his records because the proper papers were not served on him. These three cases are all from Mercersburg or vicinity.

The next case was that of Williams vs. Schindel which had been in the court through several terms. The plaintiff had recovered a judgment against defendant for $150. Defendant's counsel argued that the court erred in not permitting the reputation of plaintiff to be shown in court. That because of his habits his business decreased, and not because of interference on account of the noise of laundry. Decision reserved.

The last case was that of G. M. Swisher chief of police in Chambersburg vs. Franklin county. The case relates to the arrest of vagrants, tramps, trespassers, etc. The act of 1866 gives constables 25 cents for each arrest of such offenders. The act of 1893 in its fee bill gives them $1.75 in each case. The question is upon the amount to be paid for such arrests and whether policemen are entitled to the same fees as are allowed to constables. The decision of the questions in this case are also still with the court.

On Tuesday court again convened and the proceedings are thus reported to the REVIEW:

Judge Stewart rendered his decision in the case of Swisher against Franklin county, above referred to: There is a distinction between the office of policeman and that of constable, though some of the duties of each are alike. Under the act of May, 1876, it is the duty of both to apprehend vagrants. In this duty the policeman acts for the state. In other respects he acts for the municipality by which he is appointed. He is paid from the county treasury 50 cents for each arrest he makes for the state. After a clear and somewhat lengthy statement as to the duties of police officers and constables under the various acts regulating their duties and fees for certain services, he ordered that judgment be entered in favor of the plaintiff (Swisher) and against the defendant (the County Commissioners) for 50 cents. The decision will settle a number of other cases in which the commissioners have refused to pay the fees.

Upon petition of three citizens of Montgomery township for the appointment of a supervisor, made necessary by the resignation of J. H. Hornbaker Henry Myers was appointed.

Upon petition to sell the assigned estate of J. Mitchell Stover, after argument, the order to sell was granted. The judgment creditors had opposed the issuing of the order on the ground that the wife of the assignee is a lunatic and her dower could not be divested. These creditors therefore asked that sale be made by the sheriff.

A petition for proceedings in partition in the estate of John Harglerode, dec'd., was presented and ordered filed.

Five viewers were appointed to assess damages to certain persons in Waynesboro, sustained by grading Ringgold street. The viewers are: J. P. Rahouser, P. S. Wilhelm, R. J. Boyd, W. S. Reed and A. L. Grove.

The case of Ely vs. Besore. The plaintiff, Daniel Ely, three years ago sold to the defendant, Mrs. Rose B. Besore, certain farming implements for which she refused to pay. Judgment was obtained against her before Justice Seiders. She appealed the case to court. After two years plaintiff entered rule on defendant to file an affidavit of defense, which she failed to do. Plaintiff then obtained judgment under the rules of court. Defendant petitioned to have judgment opened. Upon the ground that this was a judgment against a married woman, it was ordered that it should be opened and Mrs. Besore be permitted to defend.

Exceptions to the report of Geo. A. Kyner, Esq., auditor in the estate of Mary Ann Washington, dec'd., were argued. Henry Watson presented a bil for nine years' services, claiming $40 still due him. The auditor held that he was boarding in the family and living there as one of the members, and was therefore not entitled to recover.

J. H. Shuman, Democratic candidate for auditor in Hamilton township, was appointed auditor. He and his opponent had received the same number of votes.

The Franklin Review.

THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1896.

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

The report of the analysis of the gold quartz found near Bellefonte recently is to the effect that while the gold is of good quality it is not of such quantity as will warrant the expense of mining it.

Antis Ellis, of Alexandria, Huntingdon county, has been bound over in the sum of $800 for his appearance at court on the charge of setting fire to his house and barn in Porter township on June 20 last.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Porter & Sherwood in another column in which they offer quite a number of valuable and useful articles absolutely free, among which is the REVIEW.

The roaring, blustering winds of early March are in unfavorable contrast with the rather genial, soft-tempered breezes of February. It is to be hoped that the exit of the present month will be much more kindly than its beginning.

Previous to the construction of the East Broad Top railroad, Samuel R. Douglass, of Shirleysburg, operated a stage line between Shade Gap and Mount Union, and for a long time drove a sorrel mare named "Doll." The faithful animal died several days ago, aged 34 years.

There is general regret at learning that the pioneer of our great railroads, the Baltimore and Ohio, was compelled to go into the hands of receivers on Saturday. President John K. Cowen and Vice President Oscar G. Murray were appointed by Judges Goff and Morris of the U. S. Circuit Court. There was due $400,000 of interest that the company could not meet.

Among the sale advertisements will be found that of A. M. Kann, which will take place on the 12th, inst., one mile north of St. Thomas. Mr. Kann will remove to Chambersburg and will represent the firm of I. P. Thomas & Co., manufacturers of fertilizers, with which firm he has been engaged the past six years. Mr. Kann wishes it understood that every thing he has advertised will be sold.

Robert Myers of Upton and Miss Hettie McKinney of Lehmaster were married at the bride's home on Wednesday evening of last week. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Rose of Mercersburg. Many friends witnessed the ceremony and attended the reception which followed. The newly married are an estimable couple and have the good wishes of hosts of friends for a happy and useful life.

Rev. E. B. Somers who has been serving the U. B. congregations of Path Valley, will not continue in the regular ministry but will engage in evangelistic work. His first engagement will be at Osceola, Clearfield county, and the next at Philipsburg, Centre county. Rev. Somers has been very successful in his ministry and has proven himself a preacher of exceptional power and effect. His congregations in Path Valley very much regret his departure.

W. S. Ashway of near Strasburg, has been somewhat unfortunate in his efforts to secure a supply of water on his farm. First he had a well dug 81 feet deep. He paid the well-drillers; then he bought a pump, suitable, as he supposed, to bring up the water, and for that he also paid; and on last Friday evening some of the pump machinery broke because it was too weak, and now he is compelled to get the help of blacksmiths and machinists to enable him to get the water he worked so hard and paid so much to find. We hope he may soon be through with his troubles and have all the water he needs for house and stock purposes.

An Ugly Fire This Morning.

At four o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the new offices of T. B. Woods' Sons near the C. V. Passenger station. It was discovered by W. R. Schaal at the electric light station who raised the alarm. The firemen were on hand as soon as possible and saved the building but the offices on both floors were gutted. All the drawings, stationery, etc., were destroyed. There is no clue to the origin of the fire nor can a correct estimate be made of the loss. Only the walls are left standing.

A Beautiful Ornament.

Major John Stoner of Housom Post G. A. R., is agent for a beautiful lithograph picture called a "Soldiers Record." The size is 16x20 inches, it is in beautiful colors and makes a very pretty ornament. Comrade Stoner should have a large sale of these pictures among the families or relatives of old soldiers. Its beauties cannot be described in a few words. It must be seen to be appreciated. The price is low. The picture can be had with or without a frame. It can be seen at Comrade Stoner's home, on South Second street, Chambersburg.

Let Us Know Who You Are.

Last week we received two communications giving interesting items of news which we have liked to publish. Neither contribution contains the name of the writer, however, and we have no means of knowing who it is. We cannot therefore admit either contribution to our columns. We do hope that those who send us items of news will give us their names. We do not want them for publication, but it is necessary that we should know the source of all items or opinions that come to us for publication. Please sign your name and let us know who you are.

A Prosperous Institution.

The board of trustees of Wilson College held its regular meeting on Thursday. Two newly elected members took their seats in the body, J. W. Sharpe, Esq., of Chambersburg, and Dr. M. J. Eckels of Philadelphia. The board expressed gratification with the work and general prosperity of the college. The faculty and the curriculum are to be enlarged.

A committee consisting of Dr. Martin, president, Judge Stewart and J. W. Sharpe, Esq., was instructed to lease a farm from which vegetable and other supplies may be procured. In accordance with their instructions the committee rented the Curtin farm just west of the college.

It was also agreed to build a residence for the president on the College grounds. A suitable dwelling will be built across the avenue in front of the college buildings.

Two new trustees were elected, Rev. M. D. Babcock of Baltimore, and Frank K. Hipple of Philadelphia.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Items of Interest About You and Our Friends and Those Whom We All Know.

George Zullinger, proprietor of the National Hotel, returned from Chicago last evening with a car load of 33 fine western horses.

H. C. Reifsnider has finished putting a complete roller process for Aug. Wolff & Co., in the flouring mill of Baughman & Son at Fayetteville.

Mrs. Geo. E. Dunlap, the matronly landlady of the Sherman House, Shippensburg, was in Chambersburg shopping Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. P. Brough Montgomery has gone to Philadelphia, where he will take a special post-graduate course on diseases of the nose and throat. He will be absent some weeks.

Miss Drucilla Harry, daughter of Titus Harry at Dry Run, was brought to Chambersburg by her brother on Monday, and left on Tuesday for Iowa where she expects to spend some time with friends.

John C. Montgomery, proprietor of Montgomery's pharmacy, who is attending the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, spent Sunday at home with his parents, Dr. John and Mrs. Montgomery.

Mrs. Horace Bender has resigned as organist in the Central Presbyterian church. Miss Bliss of Wilson college, formerly of Vassar, has been elected in Mrs. Bender's stead and she has accepted the position.

William A. Kendall and Mrs. Kendall of near McConnellsburg came to town Monday to remain a day or two. Mr. Kendall has been in bad health for a year. We shall hope for and be glad to hear of his restoration to health.

We regret to learn of the serious illness of Miss Maggie Prosser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Prosser, of Williamsport, Md. The family are all favorably known at Upper Strasburg where Mr. Prosser kept hotel for a number of years.

Solomon Warnick of near Willow Hill, left with his family on Tuesday evening for Hartwick, Powesheik county, Iowa, where four of Mr. Warnick's sons have been located for some time. Mr. Warnick and his family are estimable people. They will be missed from the valley but they take with them the best wishes of many friends for their future welfare.

C. W. McDonald of McConnellsburg, who has been with Broome & Miller for some time has opened a merchant tailoring establishment in the Woodburn building in Newville. He began work on Monday. Mr. McDonald is an experienced and skilful tailor besides being an excellent young gentleman, and we predict, and we hope for, the business success which he is sure to merit.

William Glazier of Shippensburg, who is one of the friendliest men one can meet, was in Chambersburg Monday on business. He called at the office and advanced his subscription to the REVIEW which he likes very much. Comrade Glazier was a member of the 16th Penna. cavalry and understood what it meant to hunt forage for a hungry horse and his rider in the continuous cavalry campaigns of 1864.

J. W. Newcomer of near Upper Strasburg, was in town yesterday. He didn't have time to pop upstairs to the REVIEW office, but he stopped the publisher on the street long enough to slip a dollar into his hand, saying he had seen some copies of the new paper, he liked them and wanted to try it for a year. Meeting such people has a tendency to remove the wrinkles that unrelieved cares have a tendency to multiply.

Geo. E. Dunlap and Peter Neff of Shippensburg were agreeable callers at the REVIEW office Friday. Mr. Neff is a veteran of the late war, and though he saw lots of the most exciting service he was so much in love with army life that after the war he enlisted in the regular service and had some exciting fun with the Indians for five years more. Mr. Dunlap not only settled his own subscription to the REVIEW but handed over another dollar for a friend who is also pleased with the new paper.

Rev. Jno. R. Croft of Fulton county but a native of St. Thomas township, was a caller at the REVIEW office Tuesday when on his way to attend the U. B. conference at Carlisle which convened yesterday. Rev. Croft's family are occupying the new house which has been built but not quite finished, to supply the place of the one that was burned last spring, together with most of its contents. Rev. Croft has nothing but the kindest words for the many friends who came so promptly and liberally to the relief of the family when it was destitute of almost everything in the way of clothing and household effects.

Dr. P. Mc. Cook and Mrs. Cook of Webster Mills, Fulton county, were in town Monday and Tuesday. Dr. Cook is announced for the Democratic nomination for the legislature from his county. It looks now as though he will have no opposition in his party. There is no more worthy or popular man in his party in his county than Dr. Cook, and though there has been some apathy among the Democrats in Fulton lately, there is no doubt that he will poll his full party strength, and this will insure his election. Dr. Cook and Hon. D. H. Patterson, the present member, are neighbors and close personal friends, and should both be nominated the contest will be a clean and friendly one. As the county is still democratic on a square vote it is very natural and reasonable to predict Dr. Cook's election, especially when his fitness and popularity are considered.

A Franklin County Veteran Officer.

The latest issue of the National Tribune has the following concerning a veteran office of the U. S. army, who was born at Greencastle:

The House Committee on Military Affairs has reported favorably a bill to retire as a Brigadier-General, Col. D. S. Gordon, of the 6th U. S. Cavalry, now in command at Fort Myer, near Washington. Col. Gordon was born near Greencastle, Pa., and was at first a clerk, and then a medical student. He went to Kansas in 1857, and was elected Auditor of Leavenworth City. In 1861 he was at Washington, and became First Sergeant of the Frontier Guard, organized by Gen. J. H. Lane, for the protection of President Lincoln and the Public Buildings. The guard camped in the East Room of the White House. April 20, 1861, he received a commission as Second Lieutenant in the 2d U. S. Dragoons, and with his company, under Lieut. Tompkins, made the dashing charge into Fairfax court house, which was so highly applauded at the time. His horse was shot under him, and he was taken prisoner, remaining in confinement 13 months. He was highly complimented for his gallantry on these two occasions. He fought through the entire war after being exchanged and was brevetted Major for gallantry at Gettysburg. He has served 32 years in the 6th U. S. Cavalry. Possibly no other officer in the army can show so long a service in one regiment.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

Mrs. Katherine E. Helmuth, mother-in-law of Bruce H. Schaff of the Register, died at her home in Philadelphia on Saturday aged 64 years. The funeral took place Tuesday.

Joseph Lightner, father-in-law of John H. Schaal of this place, died at his home in Baltimore Sunday afternoon at an advanced age. Besides Mrs. Schaal he is survived by two sons and a daughter.

Jacob Gipe, who was a member of the 158 Penna. regiment in the war, died at his home in Letterkenny township Sunday aged 72 years. He was a good citizen and esteemed by all who knew him.

Mrs. Margaret Ankerbrandt died at her home in Hamilton township Saturday. She had been in failing health for some time. Her age was past 64 years. She was buried Tuesday at Fetterhoff's chapel.

A. J. Bowers, the father of Joseph W. Bowers, a prominent grocer of Chambersburg, died at his home in Steelton on Saturday, aged 78 years. He is survived by four other sons, Charles, George, Frank and Herman, all of Steelton and by a daughter, Mrs. Ella Ralston, of Carlisle.

John Kennedy, probably the oldest citizen of Antrim township, died at his home on Thursday of last week, aged 88 years. He was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church nearly all his life. He leaves a family of one daughter and three sons of whom T. J. Kennedy of Waynesboro is the oldest.

There is much sympathy with the family of Dr. J. J. Coffman, of Scotland, because of the death of their infant son, John Hammond Coffman, aged nine months, which occurred Sunday morning after a brief but painful illness. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon; interment in the old Covenanter graveyard.

Solomon Sentman, one of the most esteemed citizens in the northern section of this county, died at his home in Roxbury on Sunday in the 66th year of his age, after an illness of some length. For many years he was secretary of Path Valley lodge I. O. O. F. His funeral took place yesterday. The Odd Fellows attended his funeral in a body.

Miss Jennie Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sherman, died at the home of her parents in Fayetteville, Friday morning of last week, aged 30 years. Miss Sherman was an estimable young lady who had many friends. There is much sympathy with the family in their bereavement. The funeral took place on Monday, the burial being in the Lutheran graveyard.

George Dickson died at the jail on Friday of consumption. He had been committed some weeks before for trespassing on the C. V. railroad company's tracks. He was traveling on foot and was evidently exhausted when committed. He was a soldier in the late war and about 50 years of age. His papers show that he was a member of Company L, second cavalry troop of Philadelphia. His place of residence was given as York, Pa. He was buried in Cedar Grove cemetery on Sunday afternoon. Housum Post, G. A. R., and the Post Drum Corps attended the funeral in a body. Chaplain Crawford conducted the religious services.

John H. Typer, son of A. C. Typer of Chambersburg, and formerly of Path Valley, died at his home in Littlestown, Adams county, this morning at five o'clock. Mr. Typer had been in poor health for a number of years. He went to Texas a few years ago with the purpose of improving his health but improved very little while there. He went to Philadelphia a few weeks ago for treatment, but became no better and returned home. He was married to Miss Rose Kinter of Chambersburg several years ago. She was a teacher and graduate of the C. V. S. N. S. at Shippensburg. Mr. Typer was one of the best young men who ever left Path Valley. He had splendid qualifications as a business man and was a christian gentleman in the highest sense of the word. He will be buried from his father's residence in Chambersburg.

We regret to learn of the death of James M. Buckley at his home in Iowa, Wednesday of last week. Mr. Buckley was a native of Fulton county and the half-brother of Hon. S. L. Buckley, of Fort Littleton. His death was caused by an accumulation of water on the brain. Mr. Buckley in his boyhood and early manhood was well-known to the writer and always had the esteem of all who knew him. His age was about 38 years. He was a member of the M. E. church, in which he held a number of official and responsible positions. He leaves to mourn his death a widow and four children, besides sisters and brothers. His widow is one of the best of women in every sense. She was, years ago, a pupil of the writer and for a number of years a successful teacher. She and her fatherless children have our deepest sympathy in their great bereavement.

A very estimable christian woman was set free from this world's troubles when Louisa C. Mowery breathed her life out in the hospital on South Main street, Saturday evening after a protracted illness. Though she had many relatives who would have lovingly cared for her she preferred to go to the hospital for treatment, and though all was done for her there that the best medical skill and talent could do, the inevitable hour could be postponed no longer and she was called hence to a better country whose inhabitants are never sick and never grow old or weary. She was an exemplary member of the M. E. church in which she sowed seed that will bring forth a fruitful harvest in years to come. She is survived by three brothers and five sisters, and others who will hold her in affectionate remembrance. The funeral services were held Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of her brother, Ex-Sheriff J. S. Mowery, West Market street, and were conducted by Rev. B. H. Mosser who paid the highest possible tribute to her character and worth as a working christian lady. The burial took place Tuesday in Mercersburg. The remains were accompanied to Mercersburg by a number of friends on the South Penn morning train. Upon arrival there the company was met by a number of friends who joined in the procession to the place of burial.

"THE MOUNTAIN WAIF."

The dramatic entertainment which had been announced to be held in St. Thomas by the Knights of the Golden Eagle of that place, was given on Saturday evening in the Town Hall before a large and well pleased audience.

The play represented life in a western mining camp, and was a succession of thrilling incidents and effects all well acted. Every character in the play was well presented, and shows that St. Thomas and vicinity are rich in dramatic talent among the young people. The male actors in the play are all members of the organization, each one of whom acquitted himself very creditably, and the lady participants were each exceptionally well adapted to the parts they had.

Many Knights and others from nearby towns, some from Fayetteville, Chambersburg and other points, were present, and filled the hall to its utmost capacity. There was no lack of order, for the entertainment, throughout, was so exciting and interesting that the close attention of every one present was held during the entire play.

As an evidence of the popularity of the entertainment there are many urgent requests that it be repeated, and the talented young people have consented to do so. "The Mountain Waif" will, therefore be given again on Saturday evening, March 14. The proceeds of the coming entertainment will be devoted to the serving of a banquet by the Knights to their many friends of both sexes. St. Thomas Castle, No. 309, K. G. E., is certainly to be congratulated upon its activity and good works.

Captain Skinner's Daughter Severely Burned.

Some days since, Mamie, the youngest daughter of Capt. and Mrs. George W. Skinner, was severely burned at her parents home in Pittsburg. She attempted to clean a pair of gloves in the bath room with gasoline. When she thought they were dry she went into the bed room to an open fire, with the gloves on her hands. The fluid had not all evaporated, and in a moment both gloves were blazing. Her cries brought her sister Miss Nellie to her rescue and she soon extinguished the fire with a blanket, but too late to prevent both hands from being badly burned. If she had not been clothed in woolens she would probably have been burned to death. As it is the injuries to her hands are so serious that she will be disabled for some time.

In the Court House.

Estate of Fred. I. Dimler, late of Chambersburg, to Mary Dimler.

During the month of February letters testamentary were granted on six estates and letters of administration on ten estates, a total of sixteen estates.

A subpœna in divorce a vincula matrimonii has been issued in the case of Margaret Ann Mellinger vs. Charles E. Mellinger.

The New Town Council.

The new council of Chambersburg was organized on Monday at noon. The members were sworn in by Burgess Orr. Dr. James S. Kennedy was elected president. D. B. Kirby was re-elected clerk. The committees are as follows: Fire Marshal, Dr. P. Brough Montgomery; water and light commissioner, George Bietsch; street committee, A. M. Stager, R. S. Dittman, Frank Henderson; finance committee, J. W. Houser, John Shreiner, Dr. Kennedy. E. J. Black was re-elected treasurer.

At 6:00 p. m. council reconvened and elected the following officers: Police, G. M. Swisher, chief; Charles Bickley, F. P. Bietsch, John Flack, subordinates. A. C. McGrath was re-elected superintendent of water works; Adam Dengler was retained at Siloam pumping station; H. E. Ross was elected superintendent of electric light; A. F. Clark, engineer; W. B. Schaal, fireman; Frank Hetrick, lineman; C. F. Henderson, trimmer; Frank Little, commercial trimmer and assistant. The salaries so far as we can learn are the same as before.

It was decided by a vote of 8 to 5 not to admit reporters to the sessions of council meetings.

Council refused to purchase uniforms for the police force, and to change the salary of Chief Swisher.

There were many applicants for the numerous positions to be disposed of by council and there were many disappointments among the unsuccesstul ones. There was some surprise that the entire police force was changed except Chief Swisher. The appointees on the force are all comparatively young men.

Resolutions of Respect.

Resolutions adopted by Path Valley lodge, 419 I. O. O. F., on the death of Brother P. G. Solomon Sentman, who departed this life Sunday, March 1, 1896, at his home in Roxbury, and who was a member of this lodge forty-one years.

WHEREAS, Almighty God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst by death, our dearly beloved Brother S. Sentman, we, actuated with a source of gratitude to the departed Brother for his energetic services rendered in our beloved Order, deem it proper to testify to the fraternal esteem in which we have ever held him, by tendering our sincere respect to his memory.

RESOLVED, That in the demise of our departed Brother this lodge does sorely mourn the loss of one of its most active and earnest and useful members, ever zealous in his efforts to promote and protect its best interest and whose counsels were first and always appreciated.

RESOLVED, That in the sad loss of this our beloved Brother, we recognize the hand of Him who rules over all and does all things well, and we regard the Great Author of our existence as our Father. Though with the prospects of years of life and usefulness yet we are in the midst of death.

RESOLVED, That in this hour of their most painful affliction, we tender the family of the departed our sincere condolence, hoping that they may find consolation, that their sad bereavement may be his precious gain, that an all-wise Providence doeth all things well, and that the affectionate husband and kind parent has found eternal peace and happiness in the enjoyment of a blessed immortality.

RESOLVED, That the foregoing be entered on the minutes of our lodge, and as a further mark of respect, that a copy of the same be transmitted to the family of the deceased, and that this lodge attend the funeral of our Brother on Wednesday, March 4th, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m. from his late residence.

RESOLVED, That we drape our lodge room and the members wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Lesson For Sunday, March 8.

International Bible lesson for Sunday March 8, 1896, from Luke 10: 25-37. Title: True Love to One's Neighbor. Golden text: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." Lawyers are men of a profession which teaches more of the rights and wrongs of men, public and private—more of the duties or equities which are due from man to man in civil or municipal life, than men of any other profession not excepting even the ministry.

The time of the occurrence of this lesson is given as being probably in the latter part of November, A. D. 28, in the thirty-third year of Christ's life and in the third of His ministry. It is thought that the place in which He gave this greatest lesson of "neighborliness" was "beyond Jordan," not far from Jericho.

It is impossible that we should give attention to all the intervening lessons between those that come every Sabbath. More time would be required than bread earners or even scholars with much leisure have, to study deeply and meditate on these lessons. It would be well, and possibly more impressive, if we could take the events of Christ's life, in the order in which they are given and study and learn from them, but we cannot do this, so we are compelled to confine our studies to certain times or events in the few short years of His works and teachings.

The golden text comprehends in a few brief phrases our whole duty to God and men. There is to be no reserve or modification of our love to God or men. Our love to God is to be measured only by our powers of intellect and sensibilities or emotions, and our entire will. Then our neighbor—and who this neighbor is, is defined in the beautiful story that makes up most of the lesson—is to be loved as ourselves.

But the question of the lawyer and that which concerns us most is that which is addressed to our Lord, as given in the first verse of the lesson, even if it was asked with the purpose of "tempting Him."—"What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" When asked, "what is written in the law?" the lawyer being versed in the legal—ecclesiastical law of the Hebrew people, answered correctly. Then he was told: "This do and thou shalt live." But now the spirit of criticism, skepticism and sarcasm is evinced, when he asks: "And who is my neighbor?" Then Jesus replies with the beautiful allegory which for centuries has had its application and impressed its lesson upon all who have read with seriousness or even respectful attention the story of the man going from Jerusalem to Jericho, who fell among thieves.

How often do we find in every day life the priest who, seeing repulsive poverty, loathsome disease, squalor, wretchedness and wickedness, as soon as he discerns these distasteful conditions, passes by on the other side? There would be no difficulty in finding the counterpart of this priest in many ministers of the gospel who serve respectable congregations, live in comfortable homes and do not deny themselves of a single comfort, and but few, if any, luxuries, that may be had in the markets and stores, and at the close of the year manifest an earnest business wide-awakeness in seeing that the last dollar of their salary is paid, when they know that some of those who contribute to their salaries are never able to afford a garment or a table service, such as these "priests" are accustomed to every day. It may be that in the general judgment day they will be forgiven for passing by these poor, despised ones, filthy with the earth's dust, mal-odorous with the sins of earth, and with not enough spiritual strength left to cry unto the Lord for help.—These may be forgiven in the general judgment day, but if they are, it is because the Supreme Judge of all the earth is more merciful—far more—than many men are to each other.

The Levite was a little better. He had some compassion in his nature, so he went and looked down upon the bruised, wounded, unfortunate. If the poor man had been a little more respectable, had not been quite so smeared with blood or covered with the dust of the road he might have given some help. But the fellow was so repulsive that even his groans and moans of pain could not awaken in the breast of the churchly (?) Levite sufficient pity or sympathy to call forth an effort for the poor man's relief. So he, too, went on, no doubt quoting texts of promise or psalms of praise, rejoicing in the fact that the Lord was his shepherd, that tables were prepared for him in the presence of his enemies, that his head was anointed with oil and that his cup was running over. We do not know how he consoled himself for his heartlessness, but he had these texts and passages at his tongue's end, doubtless, as the priest had, and he would certainly need to apply them in this case IF HE COULD. But the poor traveler, robbed, bruised, exhausted, was left lying in the dusty, stony road without water to refresh or any kindly word to console him.

But now, another character is introduced. A despised Samaritan comes along—a man who probably knew nothing of church ritual, understood nothing of the value of the sacrifice of pigeons, doves, goats or lambs—who had never been impressed with the dignity of temple service; who knew nothing of the sacredness of priestly robes or the significance of broad phylacteries. He is no churchman and possibly knows little or nothing of church ethics since his people are despised by the regular attendants at the synagogues with their altars, incenses, and sacred holy places. But the God of all human kind, who is "able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham," had given him the milk of human kindness, had taught him to recognize suffering, and to pity and alleviate it. So far as we can learn, there was no hesitancy in his getting down off his beast and affording the relief that was imperatively needed. No time was taken to consider whether it would be respectable to be found in the company of a bedraggled, belabored stranger without money, friends or social influence. He took the poor fellow to a public stopping place, ordered that he be cared for, and paid his bill without once asking whether he was of good family or whether he would probably get back the money he was putting out without any apparent security.

Brother, sister, in the church, whose neighbor are you, according to Christ's standard? Do you find His service sweet, in finding and binding up the heart wounds, and softening the callous places in the breasts of those who are neither respectable nor respected, according to the world's standard? If you do these things for His sake then you are good Samaritans. And while you are doing these things, remember that there are those who are not often seen in church or chapel, at altar or chancel, who also have the benedictions of the poor and despised called down upon them because of their deeds of mercy.

Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The saloon must have boys, or it must shut up the shop. Can't you furnish it one? The saloon is a great, strong factory. Unless it can get about 2,000,000 boys every generation from somebody's homes, for raw material, some of these factories must close down, and the money in the public treasury must grow less.

WANTED:—TWO MILLION BOYS,

is the notice we might read over every distillery, brewery and dramshop. One family out of every five in the world must contribute at least one boy to keep up the supply.—Templar.

The American University recently completed an agreement with the Board of Counsel of the Temperance Educational Association, by which the latter agrees to secure and transfer to the university $250,000, on condition that there shall be inaugurated, as one of the departments, a college of scientific temperance. The scheme originated with Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, of Boston, the well-known leader in scientific temperance instruction, and Vice-Chancellor Boller. It is the purpose that this department, like all others, shall be post-graduate, and devoted chiefly to original research.—Templar.

There will an end of the saloon some day, because the devil is not always going to be on top. Some day the good people of the nation will assemble themselves together, stop fighting one another, express regrets that they have been foolish, take God at His word, and take posession of America for God. What is right is bonnd to overcome what is wrong; but I have yet to hear the first decent man declare that the saloon system is a good thing. There are several ingredients in the makeup of the hash that the devil gives out, but the principal mixture is the product of the saloons. The curse will have to be voted out or fought out. The peaceful way is the best way.

Stanley's Review.

"'War correspondents!' exclaimed Lord Wolseley. 'Some of them are desperately brave, while others are anything but heroes. The majority, I think, do their duty well, even when it leads them into tight places. By the way, talking of tight places and war correspondents, I remember an incident that may interest you. It was at the beginning of the Ashanti campaign, just after our landing; a square-built little man came up to me and said, speaking slowly and with an unmistakable American accent:

"'"General, allow me to introduce myself, I am the correspondent of The New York Herald. I—"

"'Too busy to attend to him, I cut him short with, "What can I do for you, Sir?"

"'He replied imperturbably, with the same exasperating slowness, "Well, General, I want to be as near you as I can if there is any fighting to be seen."

"'"Captain So-and-So has charge of all the arrangements concerning correspondents," I rejoined, curtly; "you had better see him." And with this I turned on my heel and went about my business.

"'I saw no more of my correspondent with the aggravating coolness and slowness of speech for many a day, I did not even known whether he was accompanying the column or not.

"'Personally speaking, I was only in danger once during the whole expedition. It was shortly before we entered Coomassie. I had pressed forward with the advanced troops, hoping to break the last effort at resistance and have done with the affair, when the enemy, utilizing the heavy covert, came down and fairly surrounded us. For a few minutes the position was critical and every man had to fight, for the enemy's fire was poured in at close quarters. They pressed upon us from all sides, dodging from tree to tree, and continually edging closer, hoping to get hand to hand. In the hottest of it my attention was caught by a man in civilian's clothes, who was some fifteen or twenty yards in front of me, and who was completely surrounded by the advancing savages. He seemed to pay no heed to the danger he was in, but, kneeling on one knee, took aim and fired again and again, and I seemed to see that every time he fired, a black man fell. I was fascinated by his danger and coolness. As our main body came up and the savages were driven back, I went forward to see that no harm came to my civilian friend, who rose just as I reached him. To my astonishment it was the correspondent of The New York Herald, and he began again in the same slow, calm way:

"'"Well, General—"

"'Again I interruped him: "You were lucky to escape. Didn't you see that you were surrounded?"

"'"Well, General," he began again, "I guess I was too much occupied by the niggers in front to pay much attention to those behind."

"'That was evidently the simple truth. Whatever men may say in the future about Henry M. Stanley, no one who has seen him in danger will deny that his courage is of the first quality. I took a liking to him on the spot, and we became great friends; nor has anything occurred since to alter my opinion of him.'"—The Saturday Review.

When the value of the patterns is considered the subscriber actually gets

Demorest's Magazine Free,

And what a magazine it is! For 1896 it will be more brilliant than ever before. New management, new methods, new ideas. Each copy contains an exquisite reproduction in colors of some celebrated picture by a famous artist, worthy to adorn the walls of the most refined home. It is affirmed that DEMOREST'S is the only complete Family Magazine published combining all of the most excellent points of its contemporaries, besides having inimitable features of its own. DEMOREST'S is actually a Dozen Magazines in one.

It is a Digest of Current Events and Ideas for the busy man or woman, a Review and a Storehouse of Interest for all. Wives, mothers, sisters and daughters can find exactly what they need to amuse and instruct them, also practical helps in every department of domestic and social life, including the furnishing and ornamenting of the home, embroidery, bric-a-brac, artistic and fancy work of all kinds, etc., etc., and suggestions and advice regarding the well-being and dressing of their own persons.

The scope of the articles for 1895 and 1896 will cover the whole country and its various interests, and the articles will be profusely illustrated with the finest engravings, and, in addition, it will publish the best and purest fiction. It treats at length Out-of-Door Sports, Home Amusements and Entertainments; it gives a great deal of attention to Children's Department, and "Our Girls," and has a Monthly Symposium by Celebrated People, in which are discussed important questions of the hour of interest to the older readers.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world and tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, &c.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson; majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES.

The subscription price of THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES is one dollar a year. THE WEEKLY TIMES is a capital newspaper. It contains all the current news condensed from the dispatches and reports of the daily edition, besides literary matter, discussions upon agricultural topics by practical farmers, full and accurate market reports of prices for farm produce, live stock, &c., and a carefully prepared weekly wool market.

PUBLIC LEDGER,

PHILADELPHIA.

GEORGE W. CHILDS DREXEL EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Special Offer to Ledger Readers.

The PUBLIC LEDGER has had prepared a large Post Office, County, Township, and Railway Map of Pennsylvania complete to date. This map is given free to subscribers for two months to the Daily Edition or one year to the Saturday (weekly) Edition of the LEDGER.

The map, which has on its reverse side a complete map of the United States, has been adopted by numerous school districts in the State, and is the best and latest map issued. It is worth much more than the price of subscription but is given away freely to subscribers to introduce the paper to their notice in the firm belief that those who become acquainted with the merits of the New LEDGER will not be willing to give it up.

During 1896 the PUBLIC LEDGER'S former high place in journalism will be not only maintained, but advanced by improvements in every department, in the extension of its news service, literary attractions, and special features. To enable the publisher to make the proposed improvements, and to meet the steadily and rapidly growing circulation of the LEDGER, Messrs. Hoe & Co. have constructed for it and are now erecting four new Sextuple Presses of the latest and most approved design. These presses will increase the facilities for rapid printing 25 per cent., enhance the typographical appearance of the paper, and give more distinct impressions.

The LEDGER is first of all a newspaper giving all the news of the day, classified and in complete form. In the PUBLIC LEDGER every statement is verified, its news is therefore thoroughly reliable.

Outside of its news department (which includes special correspondence from all the important cities and towns in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware) the LEDGER is an illustrated family newspaper of exceptional interest and value, giving special attention to domestic affairs, religious news and comment, social events, games, sports, the fashions of the day, literary, art, farm and garden, scientific and labor notes, building society notes, etc.

Its financial news and market reports are complete and reliable.

The Saturday issue is a great compendium of every phrase of social life, containing reading matter to suit every taste, compiled specially for the Saturday Edition of the LEDGER. Its treatise on the International Sunday School lesson is alone worth the price of subscription.

Its classified advertisements are as interesting as news and as widely read. The public has for years made the PUBLIC LEDGER its chief vehicle for the announcements of births, marriages, and deaths.

Agents wanted; liberal commissions paid. Address Circulation Department the LEDGER for terms.

The DAILY LEDGER (Sunday excepted), by mail, to any address in the United States or Canada, 50 cents per month; $6.00 per year.

Saturdays LEDGER (weekly), a great home journal, which should be in every country home, $1.00 per year.
